Congratulations to Kay Huke of Pensacola, our newest Gold Life Master!

I'd like to thank all who attended the recent Unit 219 Sectional sponsored by Pensacola. These Sectionals are very important to the clubs as Unit policy allows all profits from the Sectionals to be retained by the sponsoring clubs. These profits have been used by the clubs to purchase Bridgemates, dealing machines, etc. – all of which make our experience at the bridge table more pleasurable.

These equipment upgrades, however, have a downside. The plastic boards in use today are far more fragile than the metal boards of old. Please treat them kindly. Refrain from dropping them on the floor. When stacking them, ensure that all boards are pointed in the same direction. Don't place them card side down on the table. The boards thank you for your consideration.

Stealing from Dan Plato, I'd like to point out that all Directors have a last name. That name is "PLEASE". So when calling them to your table to resolve a problem, it is appropriate to raise your hand and say "Director, please". Incidentally, caddies have the same last name. Both Directors and caddies will appreciate this small nicety.

Hope to see you there in the Fall. Enjoy the rest of your Summer. Remember, to avoid heat stroke on the hottest days of Summer, go to your local club for a bridge game in the splendor of air-conditioning.

Sometimes, its all about that number: Points Earned, Positional Rankings, and Percentages.

When I started playing Duplicate four years ago, someone told me in late November that I was in the running for the Ace of Clubs. I had to ask, "What is THAT?" I had never heard of the Mini McKenney either.

So let me take a moment to let our newer players know about these competitions that go beyond the clubhouse doors. The "Ace of Clubs" is awarded to the player in a Unit (in our case, that includes all the clubs between Pensacola and Tallahassee, inclusive) who earned the most masterpoints playing in club games during the calendar year.

The Mini-McKenney goes to the Unit player who earned the most masterpoints playing in ACBL-sanctioned games during the calendar year. The Category (i.e. masterpoint range: 0-5, 5-20, etc.) in which a player is awarded the Ace of Clubs or Mini-McKenney is determined by the number of masterpoints the player had as of January 1 of the year for which the award is being made. These awards are also given at the District level (Florida, in our case) and at the National level.

The Ace of Clubs winners for 2014 are:

While I am on the subject of numbers, I am happy to report on the results of the World Wide Bridge Contest held on June 5 of this year. The contest, put on by the World Bridge Federation (WBF), included about 4300 pairs from 30 different countries. 1st place overall went to Xristina Katinakh & Pahrs Gewrgoudhs from GREECE. (Anyone care to say those names really fast three times?) Oh, here it is: Coming in 7th in the world, with 71%, were Ray Hickey and Carla Hickey, from Pensacola. It is worth noting that among teams from the USA, they came in 2nd!

It is a "given" that Ray and Carla are two of the top players in our Unit. But even they have the occasional bad day. In fact, they told Carla Burke that just the day before this enormous contest, they had a 42% game at the club where they play during their summers in Pittsfield, Massachusetts. And the day of the contest itself, they had spent much of the day working in their yard, having decided to just have fun and play "ZEN" bridge. And look what happened.

Here is another occurrence to encourage 299-ers who are maybe a little shy about playing "up." At the Pensacola Sectional Tournament held in July, a pair of 299ers played in the Open Game one session. They came in 1st with a 70.75% game!!! Congratulations to Richard Osborn and Dolores Vest!

Also during the July Pensacola Sectional, a pair of 499ers playing in the Friday afternoon Open game also came in first, with 65.96%: Mary Knowles and Lucy Wilson. So, you see...

Really, the Club is a great place to get your beginner fins wet. The “sharks” in the Open tank don’t actually bite, and they can give you so many pointers about what to expect in a tournament, when to call a director and what the difference is between “announcing” and “alerting,” among other things. Both the Pensacola and Tallahassee clubs have occasional Swiss Team games – another opportunity for “Newplicate” players to learn about the strategy and the scoring, so that it is less foreign at a tournament.

How did September get here so quickly? It's not quite time for a sweater or jacket in Florida but it is a time for all our clubs to be planning and readying for the swell in our numbers as our winter visitors head south. Get ready to put your best foot forward as a club manager or director as there will be lots of new faces to impress! It's a time to set plans for the rest of the year.....are you ready? (I'm not!) Grab your calendars and a pencil.....

StAC Games will be held throughout our unit November 30th – December 6th. Don't know what a StAC game is? It's a week that local clubs can hold Sectional-like tournaments providing the opportunity to win Silver Points! This offers the opportunity to earn silver without the travel! These games are always popular particularly for our players that are on-the-hunt for their last silver point!

Our Unit has several real Sectional Tournaments coming up too! Melbourne's fall Sectional is September 5 – 7th, Vero Beach has two Sectionals coming up: October 9 – 11th and December 11 – 13th.

Don't forget Unit 240's Regional! January 4th – 10th, 2016. Are you interested in becoming a volunteer for our regional? We are looking for volunteers from all over our unit (you don't have to be from Orlando to help out! But you do have to be from our Unit!) In many cases you can earn 'free plays' by becoming a volunteer! If you are interested please email: acblunit240@cfl.rr.com Let us know what day or days you are available! We would love to have volunteers from all over our unit to help us host one of the largest Regional tournaments in Florida!

We're always eager to hear your input and suggestions! Please email us! acblunit240@cfl.rr.com

Two Floridians pick pockets in France

By Pieter Van Bennekom

Vive la difference!

In the second week of our two-week European vacation, my partner Christine and I started needing our bridge fix, and in advance we had arranged to play on a Friday at Club St. Honore just behind the Arc de Triomphe. And even though one of the other main clubs, France-Bridge, had not bothered to reply to our email, its website said there was a Wednesday evening game at its club just behind the Palais de Chaillot across the Seine from the Eiffel Tower, so we decided to just show up there, too.

Our overwhelming impression from playing bridge at two different sites in Paris is that people don't seem to be very welcoming of strangers. Whenever we play in a new place Stateside, we are introduced as visitors and people strike up a conversation to find out where we're from, etc. Not so in Paris. They let us play, tolerated us, but showed virtually no curiosity about us. Paris is so overrun with tourists – it's supposed to be the No. 1 tourist destination in the world with 24 million annual visitors – that the Parisians may be tired of dealing with the hordes of camera-toting Japanese and Indians during the day and at night they just want to get away from them to play bridge among themselves.

I could understand that – we wanted to get away from all the other tourists ourselves. Then again, maybe they were just being the typical arrogant Parisians. Only the bartender at France-Bridge, who was an Indian, offered us some water “on the house.” Also, the millions of tourists have also attracted numerous bands of pickpockets and maybe the bridge players didn't relish having their pockets picked at the table by a couple of tourists.

Things are done a little differently in Paris. There are full bars at both clubs, and a significant number of players at France Bridge dined together at one long table before the start of the game. Both bars stayed open throughout the evening, although drinking alcohol has never improved my bridge game.

Everything runs late in Paris, so the France-Bridge game didn't start until much later than the announced 8 p.m. time, and we didn't finish the 26 boards until well past 11:30, and the St. Honore game on Friday didn't start till 8:30 p.m. and we didn't finish the 25 boards until 11:45 p.m. – good thing the Paris Metro ran until almost 1 am to get us back to our hotel.

It was especially difficult to adjust to the different circumstances for Christine, who had never played in Europe before. The bidding boxes are different (they go down vertically instead of across horizontally), all the face cards are different (a King is an R for “Roi,” a Queen is a D for “Dame,” and a Jack is a V for “Valet”) so Christine had to be super-careful to count her points every time. Also, the names of the suits are different. Spades are “piques” and Clubs are “trefs” although the Hearts are at least a literal translation (coeurs), and Diamonds are “carrots” after the car shapes, so when the Dealer was calling for dummy to play the Valet of Piques, Christine had no idea what was going on until the card was actually pulled.

Then with the din of French babble all around her, she had a hard time concentrating.

I understood most of the French, but when we left a table after inflicting a bad result on a pair of opponents, they usually started arguing among themselves in rapid French as to who was more at fault, and I was lost, too. Except that the obvious sound of arguments we have caused is always music to my ears...

Under those circumstances, it seems to me that we did exceedingly well, getting a 52 percent final score at France-Bridge good enough for 5th place among the East-West pairs in a 13-table game. We got some points in the French bridge federation's scoring system, but those didn't mean much to us.

At St. Honore, we had a 50% game, but we finished in the lower half of the scoring column among the pairs because we hadn't realized that scoring was on the International Match Point (IMP) system normally used for Swiss-format team games. They take the average of what all the pairs scored, and then convert however many points you were over or under that average into IMPs. A couple of minus-800 scores that wouldn't have hurt us in normal MatchPoint scoring (a bottom is a bottom) dragged us down.

It's an interesting format and we'll do better at it the next time when we know what's important and what's not. They also distributed hand records we'd never seen anywhere else before, which tell you how many you should have gone down even if you couldn't make any contract, which is important to determine whether you made a good sacrifice or not.

One of our best boards was one from St. Honore on which I made a doubled 3 Clubs for a plus-470 score, while our opponents had an easy 3 Spades contract that would have given us a minus-140. Our score, a nice steal, was an absolute top and got us 10 IMPs. I was South on the diagrammed hand.

West led the Ace of Spades, the suit his East partner had bid first, and followed with a small Spade to East's King. East then shifted to a Heart to my Ace.

I next led a small trump. West jumped up with the King and led his last Heart to my King. I went to dummy with the Queen of trumps, which revealed the bad split. But now I knew because of the bidding that West, who was my most dangerous opponent with all his trumps, also had to have all the little Diamonds, so he was no threat to ruff as I ran the Diamonds.

West had to follow suit as I took dummy's top four Diamonds, getting rid of my remaining Spade loser on the last one. Then West had to trump in, but all he could get was his Jack and I had the last two tricks with higher trumps. I only lost two Spades and two trump tricks – I took the other 9 to make my doubled contract.

Our opponents were not happy. West blamed East for creating the impression with her bidding that she had more points than she did, but East countered that her hand had been totally distributional.

In the end, the French lady sitting East was right. Her West partner should have gone back to supporting her first suit by bidding 3 Spades for an easy 140 points – instead of giving us 470.

CAN BRIDGE PLAYERS be altruistic (definition is up to you)?

We are certainly on the right path from the donations received on The Longest Day (and night preceding it) by two clubs in our unit, for the benefit of the Alzheimer's Association.

At the Pompano DBC, of their four games on Monday, June 22, the 12:30 game was quite memorable. Even before the game started, I met three female bridge players (all unknown to me), out on this day only, due to this cause, while caregivers were watching two of their husbands, affected by this disease for 9, 12, and 17 years, before one of them passed away.

They came at the behest of one woman who requested donations from all of her friends. Thanks in large part to this woman, Sylvia Oliver, the club raised $2200.

If one Saint can make such a difference, imagine if we all reached out to solicit our friends, and our club managers heavily publicized this event. And requested donations in case their club was too small to participate, or had no club games on either Sunday and/or Monday.

The Fort Lauderdale Bridge Club donated $1700 over the course of the two days. The club started early, on Sunday, June 21, with 4 speed ball (12 board) games, and had 4 more games, of varying board size, the next day.

Are there other, non-charitable, forms of altruism at the bridge club/table? Mentoring a more junior player? Giving a ride to someone who can no longer drive? Being nice to your partner (especially if they are already beating themselves up for their mistake)? Greeting the opponents to friendly table #5? Telling the opponent they played a hand well?

Just a reminder: our December regional is being heavily advertised out of state, with 50 room-nights, of 400, already booked by June 26. See the flyer in this issue for the schedule. The Southeasterns Regional, from 3/28-4/3/16, has just been scheduled for the same hotel as our December regional, the Marriott in Coral Springs. First time for neighboring units to have the same hotel within four months of each other. We've just added a o-20 game for absolute beginners (no knowledge necessary) on Monday, December 14. Do the altruistic thing: tell all your friends here is their opportunity to learn bridge.

All the best,

Keith
